INDIANA GROWN TO HAVE LARGE PRESENCE AT INAUGURAL FANTASTIC FOOD FEST
State initiative teaming up with Circle City Expos to bring local exhibitors to the largest food and beverage event in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS (Jan. 7, 2016) — The Indiana State Department of Agriculture’s Indiana Grown Initiative continues to expand its reach by partnering with Fantastic Food Fest, an interactive food and beverage event. Taking place Jan. 16-17 at the Indiana State Fairgrounds, nearly 50 Indiana Grown members will be exhibiting at the event, showcasing their products in front of thousands of Hoosier consumers.

“The main purpose of Indiana Grown is to help connect producers with consumers and retailers; therefore, by partnering with Indiana’s largest food events, we have taken a major step toward that goal,” said Ted McKinney, Indiana State Department of Agriculture Director.

Running from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day, Fantastic Food Fest will feature a marketplace full of demonstrations, shopping, cooking classes, workshops and presentations from local chefs and celebrity chefs such as Ted Allen and Hugh Acheson. In addition, consumers will have the opportunity to purchase or sample a variety of products as well as interact with members of Indiana Grown, such as Fort Wayne-based Best Boy & Co.

“I can’t wait for Indy’s first Fantastic Food Fest to begin because I believe it will generate greater awareness of farm-fresh ingredients, food products made with these ingredients and how and where to purchase those food products,” said Wayne Shive, founder of Best Boy & Co. “I am eager for the opportunity to spread the word about Best Boy & Co. including our company mission to donate 100 percent of our profits to charity.”
